Saving on Towel & Tissue

"The most popular and economical portion-controlled dispensing units are hands-free, battery-free and offer one-at-a-time sheet delivery"

Where did our budget go? A company looking to cut costs and save on consumption needs to look at both paper quality and dispensing options.

Any school custodian would attest that pulling paper towels can become a fun game for school children. Another wasteful practice is seen in multifold towels set out on countertops or in pull dispensers. This makes monitoring paper usage a bit tricky, but various dispenser types are available to help.

A touch-free roll-towel dispenser not only reduces the amount of product used as compared to a single- or multi-fold towel, but it also reduces the potential of cross contamination. Setting dispensers on timers and designating dispensing lengths will also minimize waste. The most popular and economical portion-controlled dispensing units are hands-free, battery-free and offer one-at-a-time sheet delivery.

The number one savings tip for any facility is to have a supplier that works with them to discern the various options and what will work best for each individual situation.
